It does not seem fair to them that the layers of odds should get all the worst of it. They pay promptly, and carry out their part of the contract. Ike Thompson says he is out $4,090 on the meeting, and the other bookmakers are all reported to be losers. The bookmaker has little chance to make a round book either, for if he figures himself a slight winner on the basis that every bet is cash, he finds out later, to his dismay, that there are several bets he cannot collect.

WHAT IS THIS DISEASE CALLED DYSPEPSIA?

Like a thief, at night, it steals in upon us una wares. The patients have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint, all-gone sensation at the pit of the stomach which food does not satisfy. Eyes are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After awhile a cough sets in, at first dry but after a few months it is attended with a greenish colored expectoration. The patient feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous, tritable and gloomy and has evil forebodings. There is a glddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become costive; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow; the urine is scanty and high colored, depositing a sediment after standing.

There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart; the vision becomes impaired with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness. All of these symptoms are in turn present. It is thought that nearly one-third of our population has this disease in seme of its varied forms. I sneezed a great deal, and my bones and joints ached continually. When I got up in the morning my throat was filled with a nasty slime, which dropped there during the night. I had to hawk a great deal, and this made me gag and often vomit. There was a roaring or buzzing sound in my ears, and my breath was very offensive. I lost my appetite, ran down in weight, and became depressed in spirits.

My disease rapidly yielded to the remedy, and I underwent a chince that was wonderful. Within a short time I was entirely cured, the last traces of the hideous disease had vanished, and today my friends are marveling at the great change in me. SENATORS PLAYED POOR BALL. The Colonels Win Their First Game in The latest census returns placed the population of the District at 275,000. Just about 273,500 people remained away from the game between the Washington and Louisville clubs yesterday, and their judgment in doing so was excellent, several hundred per cent better than that displayed by the members of the local aggregation of ball players, for of all the games participated in by the senatorial combination yesterday's was about the least interesting and the most tiresome. When it is said that they could not defeat the present tailenders of the league yesterday enough s perhaps said to fully describe the miserable showing of the Washington club Whether it was the beat, or the fact that they were content with four straight games, or whether they wished to encourage the visitors from Kentucky, the fact remains that the gyme was lost. A game, too, which would have been won had the members of the local team exercised the least bit of judgment in batting. But they did not, and defeat was due almost entirely to the fact that they wanted home runs or nothing. They got the latter.

Of course the umpire was again held responsible, but he had about as much to do with the defeat of the home team as he had with the defeat of the democrats last fall. Mercer and McGuire formed the Washington battery, and Cunningham and Weish that for the visitors. Zahner started in to catch for the Louisvilles, but a split finger forced him to retire in the first inning. games, or whether they wished to encour

In the second Kemmer and Welsh hit safely, scoring, respectively, on Cunningham's fly to left and Cartwright's muff of Preston's fly. They scored one in the fourth on Welsh's hit over third for two bases, and Boyd's muff of McGuire's throw. In the fifth they got another on Mercer's siowness, a single by Welsh and Collins' two-bagger past, third. Two more came to them in the sixth on errors by Joyce and Boyd, and hits by Shugart and Clark.

The home team did not score until the third, when Hassamer's base on balls, Cunningham's wild throw, Cartwright's walk to first, and bits by McGuire and Crooks gave them two runs. In the fifth they got two more, on hits by Joyce, Hassamer, McGuire's safe bunt, and Cartwright's hit past short. The following score tells the rest of the story.

O'Connor stopped the game for ten minutes, after which Wallace had somewhat steadled himself, and it was said that O'Connor's grass act was a ruse to give his pitcher a breathing spell.

There were a number of changes as the result of yesterday's games. From fourth Cincinnati went upi to the place vacated by the Phillies and Baltimore dropped three degrees. Cleveland and Chicago are third and fourth, respectively. Only seventeen points separate the second from the seventh clubs, and another shake up will result after today's battles. Epps's Cocoa.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural naws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of a well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavored beverage, which may save us many heavy floctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hurdreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
